Foreword

On behalf of the Enfield Standing Advisory Council on Religious Education (SACRE) I commend the statutory agreed syllabus to all who are engaged in or have responsibility for RE in the London borough of Enfield. I believe that RE and a deeper appreciation of faith and belief can play an important part in supporting our borough's tradition of respect and co-operation within and between its different communities.

We live in a multicultural, multifaith society. RE is an essential part of a young person's education. It equips young people with the necessary awareness to face up to today's moral, spiritual, social and cultural challenges, and helps bind a strong society. The insights and personal foundations that can be acquired through studying the world's great faith traditions and belief systems have never been more important or relevant.

This syllabus is a statutory requirement for maintained schools that do not have a designation relating to religious character, and for voluntary controlled schools, for children and young people aged between 4 and 19. We also know that it is used extensively by our academy schools, which represents a vote of confidence in the continued relevance and usability of the material. The work to review and update the agreed syllabus has been undertaken by the Enfield SACRE, which includes a number of Enfield's RE teachers, elected councillors and leaders of our local faith communities. The review has been supported by a very experienced consultant from RE Today, Julia Diamond-Conway (RE Today Associate Adviser) and is in line with the latest government requirements.

I am proud to commend this syllabus, and offer our grateful thanks to all those whose efforts have brought about the update. I feel sure it will offer much-needed support to our local teachers, and provide an interesting and challenging contribution to the education and well-being of Enfield's children and young people.

Peter Nathan, Director of Education

Introduction

This Agreed Syllabus for Religious Education has been created for the Enfield SACRE and approved by Enfield Council. It provides a statutory syllabus for RE for Enfield maintained schools. The SACRE – including representatives of Enfield’s diverse faith groups, as well as councillors and RE teachers in the borough – hopes that schools that are not maintained within the borough will also choose to adopt this syllabus.

Since 1944, all schools have been required to teach RE to all pupils on roll, with the proviso that parents have the right to withdraw their children from the subject. RE remains part of the basic curriculum for all pupils.

The syllabus explains the value and purposes of RE for all pupils and specifies for teachers what shall be taught in each age group. It provides a coherent framework for setting high standards of learning in RE and enabling pupils to reach their potential in the subject. As part of the process of agreeing the new syllabus, the previous syllabus was looked at in depth. SACRE members felt that this was a good way to build on the solid foundations in the RE that the previous Enfield Agreed Syllabus represented.

The new syllabus:

- outlines the legal requirements for RE
- includes a principal aim for RE, clarifying the purpose of the subject
- outlines the breadth of study, indicating which religions should be studied and when
- offers key questions at the heart of the syllabus
- develops exemplar learning outcomes for all key questions
- offers an outline of knowledge/content as a guide to teachers
- offers a planning process to support teachers
- reflects a shift in language in the RE community toward the idea of organised and personal worldviews (see p. 19)
- notes the focus in the 2019 Ofsted Education Inspection Framework on curriculum, and supports teachers in planning a coherent curriculum
- reflects a growing interest in the RE community (reflected in guidance from Ofsted) in different kinds of knowledge, including substantive knowledge, disciplinary knowledge and personal knowledge (see Section D3, p. 109, and the booklet Building Progression through your new RE Agreed Syllabus at www.retoday.org.uk/syllabus-resources/ – the password is ...)

RE in Enfield

Enfield has a proud tradition of inclusive RE, with many worldviews being focused on in the RE classroom. This syllabus states the statutory minimum worldviews that pupils should study in depth at each age (please see p. 15). This syllabus also offers schools the flexibility to go beyond these minimums. Studying too many worldviews can lead to too little knowledge of any in real depth, and reduce the opportunity for pupils to know and remember more. Schools are each encouraged to explore the right breadth of worldviews to be studied in depth for their pupils, so that each child receives RE that is broad enough and in which they can make good progress and excel. The right balance of worldviews to be focused on in depth may differ between schools; it is important that each school considers the best balance for its own pupils.

The syllabus is for full implementation from September 2023.

It is licensed for use in Enfield schools from 2023 until 2028.

The Demographics of Religion and Belief in Enfield and the surrounding Boroughs

The 2021 census information sets the demographic context for our Borough and the nation. We do not intend to educate pupils only for their current life, in one London borough but also for a plural nation and a diverse world.

Learners will benefit greatly from a clear and accurate understanding of these demographics.

Detailed 2021 Census maps are available: www.ons.gov.uk/census/maps/choropleth/identity/religion/religion-tb/no-religion

Note that the findings of the British Social Attitudes Survey 2018 (National Centre for Social Research), a national survey of around 3,000 adults, indicates a greater percentage of people (52%) identifying as having no religion. More information is available here: www.bsa.natcen.ac.uk/media/39293/1_bsa36_religion.pdf Among young people, aged 16-29, the percentage rises to 70% saying they have no religion: see the report into Europe's Young Adults and Religion by Stephen Bullivant www.stmarys.ac.uk/research/centres/benedict-xvi/docs/2018-mar-europe-young-people-report-eng.pdf

A1 The purpose of RE

- Religious education contributes dynamically to children’s and young people’s education in schools by provoking challenging questions about meaning and purpose in life, beliefs about God, ultimate reality, issues of right and wrong and what it means to be human.
- In RE pupils learn about and from religious and non-religious worldviews in local, national and global contexts, to discover, explore and consider different answers to these questions.
- Pupils learn to evaluate wisdom from different sources, to develop and express their insights in response, and to agree or disagree respectfully.
- Teaching therefore should equip pupils with systematic knowledge and understanding of a range of religious and non-religious worldviews, enabling them to develop their ideas, values and identities.
- It should develop in pupils an aptitude for dialogue, so that they can participate positively in society, with its diverse religious and non-religious worldviews.
- Pupils should gain and deploy the skills needed to understand, interpret and evaluate texts, sources of wisdom and authority and other evidence.
- Pupils should be given opportunities to reflect upon their own personal responses to the fundamental human questions to which religious and non-religious worldviews respond.
- Pupils should learn to articulate clearly and coherently their personal beliefs, ideas, values and experiences while respecting the right of others to differ.

This broad purpose of RE is captured in the principal aim, which is intended to be a shorthand version for day-to-day use. Teachers should use it for short-term and long-term planning, to remind them of the purposes articulated above.

Principal aim

The principal aim of RE is to engage pupils in systematic enquiry into significant human questions which religion and worldviews address, so that they can develop the understanding and skills needed to appreciate and appraise varied responses to these questions, as well as develop responses of their own.

Schools might wish to devise a pupil-friendly version of this for themselves. Discussing this, using the full purpose and the principal aim, would be helpful for teachers in clarifying what RE is for in their school and classroom.

For example: ‘RE explores big questions about life, in order to find out what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can make sense of religion and worldviews, and reflect on their own ideas and ways of living.’

Ofsted 2019

The 2019 Ofsted Framework shows the importance of the ‘intent’ of the curriculum. This refers to ‘the extent to which the school’s curriculum sets out the knowledge and skills that pupils will gain at each key stage’ (paragraph 168). This purpose and principal aim of RE helps to set out the intent of your RE curriculum, alongside the knowledge and skills your pupils will gain at each key stage in RE, which are set out in section C in this syllabus.

A2 The aim(s) of RE

The threefold aim of RE elaborates the principal aim.

The curriculum for RE aims to ensure that all pupils:

- 1. Know about and understand a range of religious and non-religious worldviews¹, so that they can:
 - describe, explain and analyse beliefs and practices, recognising the diversity which exists within and between communities and amongst individuals
 - identify, investigate and respond to questions posed, and responses offered, by some of the sources of wisdom² found in religious and non-religious worldviews
 - appreciate and appraise the nature, significance and impact of different ways of life and ways of expressing meaning.
- 2. Express ideas and insights about the nature, significance and impact of religious and non-religious worldviews, so that they can:
 - explain, using reasoned arguments, their ideas about how beliefs, practices and forms of expression influence individuals and communities
 - express with increasing discernment their personal reflections and critical responses to questions and teachings about identity, diversity, meaning and value, including ethical issues
 - appreciate and appraise varied dimensions of religion.³
- 3. Gain and deploy the skills needed to engage seriously with religious and non-religious worldviews, so that they can:
 - investigate key concepts and questions of belonging, meaning, purpose and truth, responding creatively
 - enquire into what enables different individuals and communities to live together respectfully for the wellbeing of all
 - articulate clearly beliefs, values and commitments in order to explain why they may be important in their own and other people's lives.

Teachers should consider how their teaching contributes towards the principal aim of RE (p. 8) and how they help pupils to achieve the threefold aim above.

² The sources of wisdom found in religions and worldviews will include the key texts, the teachings of key leaders, and key thinkers from different traditions and communities. Examples include the Bible, the Torah and the Bhagavad Gita; the Buddha, Jesus Christ, the Prophet Muhammad, Guru Nanak and humanist philosophers. Other sources of wisdom might come from texts, thinkers, leaders and scientists in the contemporary world as well as from experience and informed personal reflection and conscience.

³ The RE Programme of Study usually refers to 'religious and non-religious worldviews' to describe the field of enquiry. Here, however, the aim is to consider religion itself as a phenomenon which has both positive and negative features, and is open to many interpretations: in this aspect of the aims, pupils are to engage with the concept of religion and non-religion, not merely with individual examples, and similar critiques should apply to both.

A3 How to use this agreed syllabus: 12 steps

1. Key to implementing this revised syllabus is to take time to understand the purpose and principal aim, p. 8. Is this the understanding of what RE is in your school? Does RE in your school currently deliver this aim? If teachers are to teach RE effectively, it is vital that they understand what they are doing RE for. Schools should reflect on how meeting the principal aim contributes to SMSC and wider school priorities.
2. For each key stage, get to know the Programme of Study pages (EYFS p. 24; KS1 p. 36; KS2 p. 50; KS3, p. 77). These give the statutory requirements of the syllabus. Note that the syllabus is structured around the three aims (see p.9) and the three strands, Believing, Expressing and Living. The three aims form the basis of the end of key stage outcomes and the progressive 'Learning outcomes' in each unit of study. The overview of questions (pp. 20-21) shows how the key questions relate to the strands.
3. Review the legal requirements (see p. 13) and curriculum time for RE (see p. 16). Are you fulfilling the legal requirements for RE for all pupils? Are you giving sufficient time to allow pupils to make good progress in their understanding and skills?
4. Review the religions and beliefs studied at each key stage (see p. 15 for overview). Are you following the syllabus requirements? Are you meeting the needs of your children in terms of worldviews studied?
5. The syllabus is based around a key question approach, where the questions open up the content to be studied. The syllabus gives some example key questions to help you to deliver the statutory Programmes of Study. All of the questions are found on pp. 20-21, with EYFS also on p. 26, KS1 on p. 37, KS2 p. 51, KS3 p. 79 followed by detailed outlines for each question. These are not statutory, but are designed to support you in delivering high-quality RE that enables coherence and progression in the pupils' learning. The key question outlines give structured support in terms of 'emerging', 'expected' and 'exceeding' learning outcomes, and suggested content to enable good planning and progression.
6. Audit the topics you already cover in your existing long-term plan. There may well be overlap with your current RE, but you will still need to go through and adjust (or, if necessary, re-write) Schemes of Work to ensure that RE meets the principal aim, reflects the key question approach and secures progression in relation to the end of key stage outcomes. To this end, use the planning steps.
7. The planning process is at the heart of the syllabus (pp. 38, 52, 80). The five steps are designed to help teachers make best use of the key questions and plan excellent RE. As a staff/department, go through the planning process, following the steps and one example of a key question. Note that there is flexibility in terms of choosing outcomes and content, but that all steps need to be followed.
8. Take the opportunity of the new syllabus to audit your schemes of work to consider the styles of teaching and learning that pupils are encountering. Is RE engaging and encouraging enquiry? How is RE delivered? Does it link to other subjects? Is it taught in blocks or on a once-a-week model? Do you deliberately build in opportunities for recall and retrieval of previous learning?
9. Work to create a coherent long-term plan to begin in September 2023. Make sure you can explain why you are doing units in your chosen order, so that pupils' understanding is built up in a coherent way. The syllabus is flexible enough to allow RE to be taught in a variety of ways – RE days or weeks, linking with other subjects and discretely. Ensure RE is true to the principal aim and the Programmes of Study.
10. If you are a Special School or have significant numbers of SEND pupils, read Sections C9 (p.97), E8 and E9 (p. 127, p. 128ff). There is freedom in the syllabus to adapt your RE to meet the needs of SEND pupils.
11. Share the positive adaptations and changes in RE with the governing body and other interested parties. This is an ideal chance to raise the profile of RE.
12. Use September 2023—July 2024 to implement the syllabus gradually. Adapt what works well and create a scheme of work that fits with your methods of curriculum delivery and delivers the principal aim of the syllabus. Use the year to train staff who teach RE, improve and review your planning and teaching.

B1 Legal requirements: What does the legislation in England say?

RE is for all pupils:

- RE must be provided for all registered pupils in state-funded schools in England, including those in the sixth form, unless withdrawn by their parents (or withdrawing themselves if they are aged 18 or over).⁴ It is a necessary part of a 'broad and balanced curriculum'.
- This requirement does not apply for children below compulsory school age (although there are many examples of good practice of RE in nursery classes).
- Special schools should ensure that every pupil receives RE 'as far as is practicable'.⁵

RE is determined locally, not nationally:

- A locally agreed syllabus is a statutory syllabus for RE recommended by an Agreed Syllabus Conference for adoption by a local authority.⁶
- Local authority maintained schools without a religious character must follow the locally agreed syllabus.
- Voluntary aided schools with a religious character should provide RE in accordance with the trust deed or religious designation of the school, unless parents request the locally agreed syllabus.
- Foundation schools and voluntary controlled schools with a religious character should follow the locally agreed syllabus, unless parents request RE in accordance with the trust deed or religious designation of the school.
- Religious education is also compulsory in faith and non-faith academies and free schools, as set out in their funding agreements. Academies may use their locally agreed syllabus, or a different locally agreed syllabus (with permission of the SACRE concerned) or devise their own curriculum.

RE is plural:

- The RE curriculum drawn up by a SACRE, or by an academy or free school, 'shall reflect the fact that the religious traditions in Great Britain are in the main Christian, while taking account of the teaching and practices of the other principal religions represented in Great Britain'.⁷
- The agreed syllabus has a duty 'to take care that information or knowledge included in the curriculum is conveyed in a pluralistic manner' and 'must accord equal respect to different religious convictions, and to non-religious belief'.⁸ Note that the term 'religion' encompasses both religious and non-religious beliefs.⁹

While education policy changes, the legal requirement for RE for all registered pupils remains unchanged. RE is an entitlement for all pupils, unless they have been withdrawn by their parents from some or all of the RE curriculum.

⁷ Education Act 1996 section 375.

⁸ www.judiciary.uk/wp-content/uploads/2015/11/r-fox-v-ssfe.pdf 'Equal respect' does not entail equal time.

⁹ In accordance with Human Rights Act 1988.

This agreed syllabus builds on good practice from the 2004 Non-statutory Framework for RE, produced by the then Qualifications and Curriculum Authority, the core ideas in the RE Council's non-statutory Framework from 2013¹⁰, elements of the 2018 Commission on RE final report,¹¹ the Ofsted 2019 Education Inspection Framework, the Ofsted RE Research Review 2021¹², and the REC 2023 Draft Handbook on religion and worldviews¹³.

Right of withdrawal

This was first granted when religious education was religious instruction and carried with it the connotation of induction into the Christian faith. RE has been very different from this for some time. It is inclusive and wide-ranging, exploring a range of religious and non-religious worldviews. However, in the UK, parents still have the right to withdraw their children from RE on the grounds that they wish to provide their own religious education. (School Standards and Framework Act 1998 S71 (3)). This will be the parents' responsibility. However, it is good practice to talk to parents to ensure that they understand the aims and value of RE before honouring this right. Students aged 18 or over have the right to withdraw themselves from RE.

For more guidance on withdrawal, see www.natre.org.uk/membership/guidance-on-withdrawal/

B1.1 RE, academies and free schools

Free schools are academies in law and have the same requirement to provide RE and collective worship. In this document, any reference to academies includes free schools.

As set out in their funding agreements, all academies are required to provide RE for all pupils, from Reception to Sixth Form, except those whose parents exercise their right to withdrawal.

An academy must adopt a syllabus for RE. There is no requirement for an academy to adopt a locally agreed syllabus, as long as its own RE syllabus meets the requirements for a locally agreed syllabus, set out in section 375(3) of the Education Act 1996 and paragraph (5) of Schedule 19 to the School Standards and Framework Act 1998. The requirements are that a syllabus must 'reflect the fact that the religious traditions in Great Britain are, in the main, Christian while taking account of the teaching and practices of the other principal religions represented in Great Britain'.

RE is not subject to nationally prescribed purpose of study, aims, attainment targets, and assessment arrangements, but it is subject to inspection. Where schools are not using an agreed syllabus, standards will be judged in relation to the expectations set out in the RE Council's Curriculum Framework for Religious Education in England (2013).

The Agreed Syllabus 2023-2028 for Enfield fulfils the legal requirements set out above, has its roots in the REC's Framework (2013), and takes account of some key messages from the 2018 Commission on RE final report, the Ofsted 2019 Education Inspection Framework, the Ofsted RE Research Review 2021, and the REC 2023 Draft Handbook on religion and worldviews. It is written to support academies in meeting the requirements of their funding agreements. Academies are encouraged to adopt the syllabus, taking advantage of the resources and support that it offers.

B2 What worldviews are to be taught?

This agreed syllabus requires that all pupils study Christianity in each key stage. In addition, pupils will study the principal religions represented in the UK, in line with the law. These are Islam, Hindu Dharma, Sikhi, Buddhism and Judaism. Furthermore, children from families where non-religious worldviews are held are represented in almost all our classrooms. Non-religious worldviews, including ‘organised’ examples such as Humanism, will also be the focus for study.

Religious traditions are to be studied in depth as follows:

4–5s Reception	Children will encounter Christians and people of other faiths, as part of their growing sense of self, their own community and their place within it.
5–7s Key Stage 1	Christians and Muslims or Jewish people
7–11s Key Stage 2	Christians, Muslims, Hindus and Jewish people
11–14s Key Stage 3	Christians, Muslims, Sikhs and Buddhists
14–16s Key Stage 4	Two religions required, usually including Christianity. This will be through a course in Religious Studies or Religious Education leading to a qualification approved under Section 96 ¹⁴
16–19s RE for all	Religions and worldviews to be selected by schools and colleges as appropriate.

Important notes:

This is the minimum requirement. Many schools may wish to go beyond the minimum.

- The range of religious groups in the UK. Groups such as Jehovah’s Witnesses, The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, the Bahá’í faith or the Jains are not excluded from study in this scheme for RE. Schools are always advised to make space for the worldviews of the local community, which is why the table above expresses minimum requirements.
- Schools should consider the pupils they serve in deciding whether to go beyond the minimum entitlements to learning about religious and non-religious worldviews.
- Notice the language: Christians rather than Christianity, Muslims rather than Islam. This is to reflect the fact that RE starts with encounters with living faiths rather than the belief structures of traditions. This also recognises the diversity within and between people of the same and different religions.
- Notice that many Sikhs prefer the term Sikhi instead of Sikhism; Sikhi is a verb and signifies that this faith is not just about a system of belief, it is a path to follow, a way of life – about learning to be human. The term ‘Sikh’ comes from the word sikhna which means ‘to learn’: hence a Sikh is a learner.
- Non-religious worldviews. Good practice in RE, as well as European and domestic legislation, has established the principle that RE in schools without a religious character should be inclusive of both religions and non-religious worldviews. Schools should ensure that the content and delivery of the RE curriculum are inclusive in this respect.
- This syllabus requires that, in addition to the religions required for study at each key stage, non-religious worldviews should also be explored in such a way as to ensure that pupils develop mutual respect and tolerance of those with different worldviews. This is enabled through the following key questions: L2.6, L2.9, U2.1, U2.5, U2.7, 3.1, 3.4, 3.9, 3.10 and 3.12.
- Learning from four religions across a key stage is demanding: the syllabus does not recommend tackling six religions in a key stage. Depth is more important than overstretched breadth. Schools are encouraged to teach less but teach it better.
- Key questions in this syllabus allow schools to draw in different traditions where they fit the theme and question, and where there are representatives of those traditions in the school and local community.

B3 Time for religious education

Schools have a statutory responsibility to deliver religious education to all pupils, except those withdrawn by parents (see p. 14).

Schools must ensure that sufficient time is given in order to enable pupils to meet the expectations set out in this agreed syllabus, ensuring that the curriculum is coherent and shows progression, particularly across transitions between key stages.

There is no single correct way of making appropriate provision for RE as long as the outcomes are met.

In order to deliver the aims and expected standards of the syllabus effectively, the expectation is that there is a minimum allocation of 5 per cent of curriculum time for RE. This is set out in the table below, and based on the most recent national guidance.

4–5s	36 hours of RE per year (e.g. 50 minutes a week or some short sessions implemented through continuous provision)
5–7s	36 hours of tuition per year (e.g. an hour a week, or less than an hour a week plus a series of RE days)
7–11s	45 hours of tuition per year (e.g. an hour a week, or a series of RE days or weeks amounting to 45+ hours of RE)
11–14s	45 hours of tuition per year (e.g. an hour a week)
14–16s	5% of curriculum time, or 70 hours of tuition across the key stage (e.g. an hour a week for 5 terms, or 50 minutes per week, supplemented with off-timetable RE days)
16–19s	Allocation of time for RE for all should be clearly identifiable.

Important notes:

- RE is legally required for all pupils. Plural RE that conveys and accords equal respect to different religions and non-religious worldviews (e.g. Humanism) is a core subject and an entitlement for all pupils throughout their schooling. For schools offering GCSE short course RE in Y9 and Y10, there is still a requirement that there is identifiable RE in Y11. Note that teachers should ensure that KS4 accords equal respect to religious and non-religious worldviews. Following a GCSE course does not automatically fulfil this requirement.
- RE is different from assembly. Curriculum time for RE is distinct from the time spent on collective worship or school assembly, even though making links between the collective worship and the purposes and themes of RE would be good practice. The times given above are for religious education.
- Flexible delivery of RE is often good practice: an RE themed day, or week of study can complement – but not usually replace – the regular programme of timetabled lessons.
- RE should be taught in clearly identifiable time. There is a common frontier between RE and such subjects as literacy, citizenship or PSHE. However, the times given above are explicitly for the clearly identifiable teaching of religious education. Where creative curriculum planning is used, schools must ensure that RE objectives are clear. In EYFS, teachers should be able to indicate the opportunities they are providing to integrate RE into children’s learning.
- Coherence and progression. Whilst schools are expected to make their own decisions about how to divide up curriculum time, schools must ensure that sufficient time is given to RE so that pupils can meet the expectations set out in the locally agreed syllabus and this handbook to provide coherence and progression in RE learning. Any schools in which head teachers and governors do not plan to allocate sufficient curriculum time for RE are unlikely to be able to enable pupils to achieve appropriate standards in their RE.

C1 Curriculum design in RE

Teachers should be clear about how their curriculum fits together and be able to explain why they teach in units and content in the order in which they do it. This page includes some key ideas to bear in mind when planning your RE curriculum.

Your RE curriculum needs to be structured so that it...

...makes sense to pupils

- Offer a clear structure for learning: in this syllabus, units are based around the three strands of Believing, Expressing, Living (see syllabus pp. 20–21). Each strand is broken down into ‘threads’, so that teachers can see what learning has gone before and what is to follow. Help pupils to see the narrative of your curriculum, to build on their prior learning as they move through the school.
- Use a good grounding of systematic study of individual religions to prepare pupils for thematic study, where they compare religions. For example, you will find that studying two religions separately in the first two terms and then comparing them in the summer term will help pupils to make sense of and build on their learning through the year.

...focuses on core concepts

- Select key ideas and concepts at the heart of religious and non-religious worldviews.
- Explore these from different perspectives to enrich understanding (e.g. asking how a religious person or a non-religious person might respond to a key question or idea, or how adherents from different places, times or denominations may respond).
- In general, going deeper is preferable to going broader, given the time constraints. Don’t focus on coverage – focus on understanding.

...allows pupils to encounter diverse examples of religion and worldviews

- Offer pupils contemporary, contextual accounts, rather than implying that there is a generic Christianity, Islam or atheism that always applies to all followers.
- Show something of the diversity of religion/worldviews (across time and place; within and between traditions) by using examples and case studies.
- Get pupils into texts, not just short quotes, developing skills of reading and interpretation.
- Show connections and differences across religions and beliefs.
- Explore religious and non-religious worldviews.
- Note that ‘worldviews’ can be individual and organised, with overlaps and fuzzy edges. (The religions traditionally studied in RE may be seen as ‘organised’ worldviews, but individual believers within those traditions will have their own worldviews that have common features but are not identical.)

...enables pupils to embed learning in their long-term memory

- Clarify technical terms and check pupil understanding regularly.
- Find creative ways to enable pupils to handle and absorb core knowledge.
- Give pupils repeated opportunities to engage with content.
- Give pupils a chance to revisit and recall knowledge – in thoughtful and engaging ways (i.e. not just quizzing!). For example, revisit through presenting images or texts from previous units for pupils to label, describe, annotate and explain.

...makes space for pupils’ own beliefs/worldviews

- Allow pupils to articulate ideas, with reasons, arguments, rebuttals and responses – but leaving space for ambiguity and contradiction.
- Recognise the significant number of non-religious pupils in RE – and make space for them as a focus for study. What do they believe and why, how do they live and why?

...encourages pupils’ personal development, applying their learning to living

- Enable pupils to disagree respectfully.
- Engage pupils in handling and applying their learning.
- Give opportunities for pupils to make connections between the ideas studied, with the world around them, and with their own worldviews.

C2 Worldviews in RE

This syllabus refers to religious and non-religious worldviews throughout. The term ‘worldview’ encompasses a broad range of ideas, incorporating the religious and non-religious. Traditionally, RE has examined religious worldviews by looking at the traditional beliefs, teachings and practices of the world religions (Buddhism, Christianity etc.). Recent developments in RE, such as those described in the 2023 REC Draft Handbook on religion and worldviews, differentiate between organised or institutional worldviews and individual worldviews.

Organised worldviews

Organised worldviews include the traditional religions studied in RE (Buddhism, Christianity, Hindu Dharma, Islam, Judaism and Sikhi). They usually provide a way of understanding the world, answers on the big questions, and instructions on how to live. Organised worldviews may include formal structures, agreed teachings and official practices.

Some traditions are more ‘organised’ than others. For example, within Christianity the Roman Catholic Church has centralised institutions that lead and direct Catholics worldwide. Islam, on the other hand, has strands of traditions that hold core beliefs in common (such as the Prophethood of Muhammad and the divine revelation of the Qur’an) but which differ in historical development and practice (such as Sunni and Shi’a traditions). Both Christianity and Islam are explored as examples of organised worldviews in this syllabus, but pupils should have opportunities to see how there is not a single model of ‘organised’ worldviews that applies to all.

Individual worldviews

Many people around the world are part of ‘organised worldviews’, and of course that influences their individual worldview. However, an individual’s own worldview may not necessarily reflect the official or traditional beliefs and teachings of the organised worldview. The REC Draft Handbook applies the terms organised/institutional/individual worldviews to the object of study, the content of RE.

Many people in the UK have non-religious worldviews. Some may be active members of Humanists UK, who present a form of organised non-religious worldview. Many non-religious people, however, have individual worldviews that draw on a wide range of influences – some from within religious traditions (such as belief in an afterlife or angels, or practising mindfulness meditation) even when they do not see themselves as members of a religious tradition. Non-religiousness is not connected to any particular organised worldview, and individuals may have hugely diverse and occasionally overlapping personal worldviews.

Personal worldviews

Everybody has a personal worldview – it is a way of describing how we encounter the world, including our own place in it, whether or not we have thought about it. It is shaped by our experience and environment, but it also shapes how we experience life, and how we encounter our environment. It is the story that we tell ourselves in response to life, shaping how we make sense of the world, ourselves, and others. We are inescapably placed within our context, within our story, within our worldview. The REC’s Draft Handbook applies the term ‘personal worldviews’ to pupils and teachers within the classroom – i.e. the learners, to differentiate from the individual worldviews of adherents being studied in lessons.

Using the idea of worldviews in this syllabus

This syllabus uses the idea of worldviews as a way of allowing for some flexibility in the presentation of traditional religions – acknowledging the diversity within traditions, geographically and across time. It also enables pupils to recognise that members of religious traditions may have individual worldviews that differ. The idea of personal worldviews applies to pupils’ own perspectives within the RE classroom.

 These units are additional. Schools should consider whether and how to include them within their RE curriculum.

KS1 Units of Study

Key question 1.1: Who is a Christian and what do they believe?

The principal aim of RE is to engage pupils in systematic enquiry into significant human questions which religion and worldviews address, so that they can develop the understanding and skills needed to appreciate and appraise varied responses to these questions, as well as develop responses of their own.

Hear and think about some prayers Christians use. Note that not all Christians practise their faith in the same ways. • Experience thanking and being thanked, praising and being praised, and connect this experience simply to an idea about worship. • Many pupils have no personal belief in God but have just learnt lots about people who do. Give them the opportunity to comment on the idea of God for themselves, such as whether or not it has any meaning in their lives.

Upper Key Stage 2 Units of Study

Key question U2.2: What would Jesus do? (Can people live by the values of Jesus in the twenty-first century?)

The principal aim of RE is to engage pupils in systematic enquiry into significant human questions which religion and worldviews address, so that they can develop the understanding and skills needed to appreciate and appraise varied responses to these questions, as well as develop responses of their own.

Use the ideas below to explore Jesus' teachings and example and how they inspire many Christians today. Consider the extent to which Jesus' values and example would benefit today's world, within the school community, local and national communities and out to the global community. • Examine Jesus' mission (Luke 4:18–19). Find examples of where he fulfilled this. • Love: use some of Jesus' stories, teachings and examples to understand what Christians believe he meant by loving others (e.g. greatest commandments, Matthew 22:37–40; good Samaritan, Luke 10:30–35; the lost son, Luke 15:11–32; love your enemies, Matthew 5:43–48; compare with Paul's letter, 1 Corinthians 13:4–7; explore the idea of agape love – self-sacrificial love; make link with belief that Jesus died to show his love for all humans, John 3:16). • Forgiveness: use some of Jesus' stories, teachings and examples to understand why he saw forgiveness as so important (e.g. forgive others, Mark 11:25/Luke 6:37; the two debtors, Luke 7:36–50; the unforgiving servant, Matthew 18:21–35; Jesus forgives those who crucify him, Luke 23:34; link to previous learning about sin and the 'Fall' in question L2.2). • Justice and fairness: use some of Jesus' stories, teaching and examples to understand the way many Christians believe people should treat each other (the sheep and the goats, Matthew 25:31–46; serve others, Mark 9:35–37; not just speaking about justice but practising it, Luke 11:39–42). • Generosity and not being greedy: use some of Jesus' stories, teaching and examples to understand the way many Christians believe people should handle wealth (the vineyard workers, Matthew 20:1–16; widow's offering, Mark 12:41–44; the rich young man, Mark 10:17–27; Zacchaeus, Luke 19:1–9). • Read gospel passages that talk about the 'kingdom of God', where people live the way God wants people to live (e.g. mustard seed, Mark 4:30–32; hidden treasure, Matthew 13:44–46; good and bad soil, Matthew 13:1–8, 18–23; the great feast Luke 14:15–24). What would this kingdom be like? • Devise some moral dilemmas; pupils ask 'what would Jesus do?', to apply their learning in this unit. Reflect on and discuss what impact following Jesus' example and teaching have on the school/local community/world. Some say Jesus' demands are impossible: is this true, and if so, is it worth aiming for them or not?

Planning steps

Teachers should have the principal aim of RE at the forefront of their minds as they plan their RE.

The principal aim of RE is to engage pupils in systematic enquiry into significant human questions which religion and worldviews address, so that they can develop the understanding and skills needed to appreciate and appraise varied responses to these questions, as well as develop responses of their own.

Step 1: Key question	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Select a key question from p. 79. • Make sure that you can explain where this unit/question fits into key stage planning e.g. how it builds on previous learning in RE, what other subject areas it links to, if appropriate.
Step 2: Select learning outcomes	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Use the learning outcomes from column 2 of the key question outlines/units of study on pp. 82-93. • Select learning outcomes appropriate for the age and ability of your pupils. • Being clear about these outcomes will help you to decide what and how to teach.
Step 3: Select specific content	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Look at the suggested content for your key question, from column 3 in the key question outlines/units of study. • Select the best content (from here, or additional information from elsewhere) to help you to teach in an engaging way so that pupils achieve the learning outcomes.
Step 4: Assessment: write specific pupil outcomes	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Turn the learning outcomes into pupil-friendly 'I can' or 'You can' statements. • Make the learning outcomes specific to the content you are teaching, to help you know just what it is that you want pupils to be able to understand and do as a result of their learning. • These 'I can/you can' statements will help you to integrate assessment for learning within your teaching, so that there is no need to do a separate end-of-unit assessment.
Step 5: Develop teaching and learning activities	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Develop active learning opportunities and investigations, using some engaging stimuli, to enable pupils to achieve the outcomes. • Don't forget the skills you want pupils to develop, as well as the content you want them to understand. • Make sure that the activities allow pupils to practise these skills as well as show their understanding.

Key question 3.5: Why is there suffering? Are there any good solutions?

The principal aim of RE is to engage pupils in systematic enquiry into significant human questions which religion and worldviews address, so that they can develop the understanding and skills needed to appreciate and appraise varied responses to these questions, as well as develop responses of their own.

Strand / Questions / Religions	Learning outcomes (intended to enable pupils to achieve end of key stage outcomes):	Suggested content for learning: Teachers can select content from these examples and add more of their own.

Consider how suffering differs around the world, e.g. compare relative poverty to absolute poverty. Consider the phrase ‘first world problems’ – do students suffer from these? Is suffering a natural human state, wherever we live and whatever we have? • Explore Old Testament accounts of why we suffer. Look at the story of the ‘Fall’ in Genesis 3. Explore some Christian understandings of how sin is the root cause of human problems. Read some Proverbs, e.g. Proverbs 10 and 22. If we follow these instructions (work hard, don’t be greedy, be obedient, etc.) will we avoid suffering? Compare with Job, who demands to know why the righteous suffer. Explore the story of Job. Read God’s answers in e.g. Job 38:2–11. How far is Job happy with this response and why? How do Christians respond to Job’s example? Can students suggest alternative answers to Job as to why good people suffer? • In the New Testament, Jesus says his followers should alleviate suffering. In Matthew 25:31–46 Jesus explains that when ‘you help one of my brothers/sisters, you help me’. Is there suffering because humans do not help each other? • Explore a philosophical approach: how can a good God allow suffering? Many people argue that God cannot be good, or that God does not exist. How do Christians see the death and resurrection of Jesus as an answer to the challenge of the problem of suffering? • Explore Buddhist understanding of suffering as dukkha (1st Noble Truth). We cause dukkha through craving (2nd Noble Truth). Look for examples of how craving brings dukkha in the lives of individuals. How far does this reflect students’ own experience? • Find out about the Buddhist solution to suffering: cessation of craving (tanha) through following the Noble Eightfold Path (3rd and 4th Noble Truths). How does the Noble Eightfold Path offer a map to escape the jaws of Dukkha? Consider how far humans are responsible for causing dukkha and overcoming it. • Link with key question 3.4 and evaluate how far Christian and Buddhist beliefs about life after death affect their views on suffering. • Ask students to summarise each religious teaching, e.g. behave well and trust God (Old Testament); get your hands dirty – follow Jesus (New Testament); stop wanting what you cannot have (Buddhism). Evaluate each and express students’ own responses to the question: Are there any good solutions to suffering?

C8 RE in KS4 and 5 /14–19 Statutory Requirements

Penny, age 15

'Your request has been denied.'

'Your request...' represents the feeling that God, if he exists, is unreachable and hidden.

'At a time when we need God most, such as the peril the girl is facing, we reach out. No one grabs our hand. The masses of paper falling from the sky are a suggestion that our prayers never reach anyone. Cast up to the sky they fall back down again.

'The phrase "your request has been denied", written on every piece of paper, is a suggestion that I can't reach God. I feel there is no personal bond, no personal response to my prayers. All we receive is a weak cover-up of the truth, and automated message: your request to be happy, to be alone, to do well, to get better, has been denied. If this is what happens, I feel it is very unlikely that God exists. This is what my paint and ink expresses. The different coloured lines represent movement, the different feelings the girl experiences during each prayer, each denied request.'

C8 RE in KS4 and 5 /14–19

What do pupils get out of RE at this key stage?

All state-funded schools must teach RE to all students on school rolls, including all those in 14–19 education (unless withdrawn by their parents, or, if 18 or over, they withdraw themselves). It is important that teaching enables suitable progression from the end of Key Stage 3, in varied ways that meet the learning needs of all students. All students can reasonably expect their learning will be accredited, and this agreed syllabus requires that all 14–16 students must pursue an accredited course in Religious Studies or Religious Education leading to a qualification approved under Section 96 (see p. 15). The agreed syllabus does not require that every individual student be entered for this examination: that is a matter for schools. Appropriate modes of accreditation include nationally accredited courses in RE such as GCSE and A level RS, and a wide range of enrichment courses and opportunities, such as the Extended Project Qualification. Good practice examples include many schools where all students take GCSE RS courses at 16, since these qualifications are an excellent platform for 14–16 RE.

Note that teachers must ensure that RE in these phases accords equal respect to religious and non-religious worldviews. Following a GCSE course does not automatically fulfil this (see p. 16).

70 hours of tuition or 5% of curriculum time across Key Stage 4 is the normal requirement by which students can achieve the standards of the GCSE short course in Religious Studies. This is the minimum benchmark for RE provision at Key Stage 4 for schools using this syllabus. 140 hours of tuition is needed for GCSE RS Full Courses, in line with other GCSE subjects.

Schools should provide opportunities for those who wish to take A levels, alongside core RE for 16–19s. The minimum requirement is ten hours of core RE across Year 12–13.

What do students get out of RE at this age?

All students should extend and deepen their knowledge and understanding of religious and non-religious worldviews, explaining local, national and global contexts. Building on their prior learning, they appreciate and appraise the nature of different religions and worldviews in systematic ways. They should use a wide range of concepts in the field of Religious Studies confidently and flexibly to contextualise and analyse the expressions of religions and worldviews they encounter. They should be able to research and investigate the influence and impact of religions and worldviews on the values and lives of both individuals and groups, evaluating their impact on current affairs. They should be able to appreciate and appraise the beliefs and practices of different religions and worldviews with an increasing level of discernment based on interpretation, evaluation and analysis, developing and articulating well-reasoned positions. They should be able to use different disciplines of religious study to analyse the nature of religion.

Specifically, students should be taught to, for example:

- Investigate and analyse beliefs and practices of religions and worldviews (including non-religious worldviews) using a range of arguments and evidence to evaluate issues and draw balanced conclusions.
- Synthesise their own and others' ideas and arguments about sources of wisdom and authority using coherent reasoning, making appropriate references to their historical, cultural and social contexts.
- Develop coherent and well-informed analysis of diversity in the forms of expression and ways of life found in different religions and worldviews.
- Account for varied interpretations of commitment to religions and worldviews and for responses to profound questions about the expression of identity, diversity, meaning and value.
- Argue for and justify their own positions with regard to key questions about the nature of religion, providing a detailed evaluation of the perspectives of others.
- Use a range of research methods to examine and critically evaluate varied perspectives and approaches to issues of community cohesion, respect for all and mutual understanding.
